FOR RELEASE WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11

The Montana State University Council of 50, a statewide group concerned with present and future planning of the University, will be called into session for the second time on the Missoula campus Friday (13th), it was announced by President Robert Johns. Since the original meeting of the Council last June, separate committee meetings have been held covering research, campus planning and development, statewide services, finances and academic planning and development. Reports on these meetings and later developments are expected at the session on Friday.

According to President Johns, particular interest at the session will be concentrated on several areas, including the newly announced general plan for campus expansion to meet the growing enrollment at MSU. Enrollment is regarded as one of the keys to the University's future, involving not only the physical plant, but expansion of the teaching and operations staff, curriculum development, services to the state, research and the omnipresent problem of financing.

In addition to working sessions to be conducted in the Lodge, the Council is expected to be taken on a survey tour of several University buildings for a better understanding of the facilities problem.
